Important Aspects of the 4 Categories of Risk:

- Each individual country, including the United States, will fall into a particular category of risk which will change over time.
- This travel guidance impacts University-sponsored travel only.
- Faculty, staff and students who are authorized to travel must book travel through an approved Stanford Booking Channel.
- If you have any questions regarding Stanford travel guidance, please contact globalrisk@stanford.edu.

<sup>1</sup> Factors in assessing health and safety risk include, but are not limited to, International SOS assessment, availability and reliability of testing, vaccination status, potential for community spread, status of health infrastructure, entry restrictions, and feasibility of evacuation.

<sup>2</sup> Limited exceptions may be considered for essential education or essential research.

<sup>3</sup> If a third party books travel, it must be registered via MyTrips (for example, faculty travel to a conference funded and/or booked by a non-Stanford entity).
